CLAIM BEAUMONT

Beaumont, chamber officials say. Members of the good roads committee of the Port Arthur chamber declare the more by Beaumont is simply another effort to utilize county funds in building up Beaumont trade territory, with every indication being that efforts will be made again to put Port Arthur, Nederland and Port Neches "out on a limb" which would necessitate going through Beaumont to get anywhere in Port Arthur territory.

Jobbers Warn Road
Chamber officials today charged that the impeding force behind Beaumont's demand for the road from Beaumont to High Island to link up with the Galveston route are Beaumont jobbers.

Matters will be carried to an issue at a meeting before the commissioners' court August 15. Chamber officials declared today.

"We expect to lay our cards on the table and demand fair play. Failing in that we can say one thing—the road will not be built at all," one official said. "Port Arthur does not propose to submit itself to any bond issue at variance with its own needs. There have been too much of that done already." Chamber officials declared the matter was one which properly should come up before the Sabine District Industrial association for consideration, organized to care for just such matters, they said.

LONE REQUEST MADE BY HUNS

Ask Arbitration in Event Reichstag Defaults

LONDON, Aug. 6.—The German delegation worked until dawn today completing its reply to the documents received from the allies at yesterday's plenary session of the reparations conference.

The reply, it was learned reliably, urges that Germany be allowed to have representatives on any arbitration committee set up in case where a default by the Reichstag is declared.

It is understood that Chamberlain and his colleagues made immediate concessions of a minor character, changing their original plans in order not to block proceedings and to assist in speeding up the work of the conference.

ELUDES OFFICERS BUT GIVES SELF UP LATER

Eluding Constable Baker and Deputy Johnson last Saturday when the officers raided two stills and arrested two men in the swamps near Port Acres, a man giving his name as Frank Clark came to the police station this morning and voluntarily gave himself up.

of additional families to this locality.

"We would be glad to see them do business with you in Port Arthur, but at the present time there is no regular means of communication with Johnson's bayou and Port Arthur.

"We are contemplating establishing a small commissary at Johnson's bayou to take care of the immediate needs of our people, and have had in mind that we would possibly establish a boat line or have one established between your city and the bayou if we could secure the co-operation of the business people of Port Arthur, as this is our nearest point to which our people could turn for supplies and amusement.

"We will be pleased to take this matter up with you again at a later date when we have fully decided what we expect to do."

Love, Strange, Others To Address Aggies Here Monday Night

And if you ever went to A. & M.

You may know the rest of the old-time chant, but it doesn't apply here. Instead, every Texas A. & M. man in Port Arthur is requested to phone in reservations for a banquet to be held Monday night either to 433-1 or 1080-W.

Not only are the 300 A. & M. men here expected, but the Aggies from Beaumont will also attend, and Port Arthur-Aggies are said to be preparing to receive them in the old-time "bullpen" fashion. Notable speakers Monday night will be General A. C. Love, "Tunlac" Strachan, "Squarehead" Brauns, "Bully" Irwig and others.

Fight Case 2 Years Old Dismissed Today

A Port Arthur street fight two years ago became history today when charges against Clay Dunn, T. S. Polovina, Jack O'Burke, Joe Victor, and T. J. Freeman, charged with aggravated assault in connection with the melee, were dismissed by Judge C. N. Ellis in county court-at-law at Beaumont.

Dismissal followed when no one appeared to prosecute the case. The fight on which the arrests were an aftermath occurred on the corner of Procter street and Austin avenue.

LAFOLLETTE, WHEELER, MAY SWEEP TEXAS

DALLAS, Aug. 6.—Political "buddies" by democratic leaders in Texas may mean that the LaFollette-Wheeler movement will sweep the state and roll up an independent victory at the next general election. Richard Potts, chairman-elect of the independent convention, said here today.

"The nomination of Felix Robertson on the democratic ticket will virtually assure victory for the independent ticket," Potts said.

"Negatives from every section of the state are pledging their support to the LaFollette-Wheeler combination," Potts declared.

Potts estimated the eligible negro vote in Texas at 150,000 this year. He also declared 75,000 socialists of the state would support LaFollette.

In 1912 they employed only 7 people, while their present force on an average is 20. There are times, however, when they employ as many as 300.

The Company does marine repair work, general ship over-hauling, and constructs small vessels and barges, all of which work is performed at its ship yard and workshops, Caledonia Docks at turning basin. The Company maintains their offices in the Merchants National Bank Building.

The plant consists of about 16 acres centrally situated on the turning basin, extending back an average depth of 1280 feet; the depth of water in the basin in front of the plant is about 27 feet. Small vessels can tie up directly in front of the Company's wharf. There is a marine railway for docking small boats and barges. All buildings are located on an elevation which is above the record high water mark made by the 1915 storm. The plant is comprised of a machine shop, backsmith shop, woodworking buildings, and other equipment necessary for the character of work in which the Company is engaged. The machinery is all modern and electrically driven.

The McEwan Ship Building and Repairing Company recently obtained a 6000 ton drydock, which they contemplate moving to their plant, in addition to their present floating equipment.

PIMPLES AND BUMPS TAKE JOY OUT OF LIFE

The worst fault it leads to is using just anything which promises them relief from their condition, which either makes their trouble worse. Never put anything on your skin which has not been proven by the test of time and public opinion to be right.

In this connection the phenomenal success, which is called Black and White Ointment, and the soap, too, offers sufferers from such skin diseases the one reliable and dependable means of relief and restoration of their skin to fine, clear, smooth and lovely condition it was in their youth.

Black and White Ointment, and soap, are economically priced, in liberal-size packages. The 60c size of the ointment contains three times as much as the 25c size. All dealers use both the Ointment and the Soap.

RUSSIAN SOCIALISM

In all our talk of the recognition of Russia, it must not be forgotten that a recognition of the Soviet government is tantamount to a belief in the doctrine totally opposed to Democracy.

That government represents the control by the laboring classes, of the state, not by the peaceful ballot, but by force. It must not be forgotten that the Soviet government rests upon its army and not upon the suffrages of its citizens.

The Bolsheviks remain a minority of their country. Russia is governed by a minority and a minority government is totally opposed to Anglo-American instincts.

Our democracy may be bad and imperfect, but at least it is the kind of government we want. It represents a government by a majority of the people. We have only to go out and convince a majority of our fellow citizens in order to change that government when we consider it to be wrong.

An acknowledgment of the Russian state by us would give them a right to have a consul in every city and that consulate would not alone be for the protection of the Russian citizens of the place, and of Russia's interests there, but it would be the center of propaganda of Russian ideas.

It must not be forgotten that with Russians their theory of government is tantamount to religion. It is believed in with all the ferocity and fanaticism of a creed. They think their mission is to convert the world.

This condition of prosperity in the United States and other countries which is due to the sanctity of property, and to the law which governs property, is labeled by them "Capitalism."

This they regard as their chief enemy to the people of the state.

We, on the contrary, know that there is no prosperity without capital and our law should be framed so as to encourage thrift and the laying up of capital in order to develop further industries.

It will thus be seen that the theory of government among the Russians and in the United States is diametrically opposed. This does not mean that they are not at liberty to advocate their ideas freely. They are. They are free to publish and to speak what they think but it is quite sure that the common sense of our people will reject any system of Communism or "Socialism."

What we want is not less capital but more of it, more widely distributed and more available.

SPEAKING OF NEW ROADS, WHY NOT KEEP FAITH WITH PLEDGES?

A delegation of 24 men from various parts of Jefferson county have been or will be appointed to confer with commissioners' court on the question of road improvements.

Port Arthur's road problem is one of the greatest confronting the city. If there is any community which should get up on its hind legs, metaphorically speaking, and roar it is Port Arthur. Port Arthur in the past has done just that with little or nothing so far to show for it.

A county as old as Jefferson county can have no excuse for such ancient, ill-planned and poor stretches of roads as are some of those running into Port Arthur. We use the term running into Port Arthur in its usual sense. A better way to describe it would be to say roads that run everywhere else first, and then into Port Arthur. And since, in many of them, there is no other way to get to Port Arthur from some sections of the country but to follow these bear tracks, even though it takes the traveler to the moon, there is no other course but to follow the road, and watch the speedometer eat up useless miles.

For the automobilist who has plenty of time at his disposal in a recreation sense extra miles mean little. But when it comes to freeing out a rich neutral trade territory it becomes a matter of considerable concern.

Various excuses have been put forth in the past as to reasons why a road from LaBelle, for instance, has never been built. LaBelle is the oldest settlement in the county. For 75 years or more original settlers and their posterity have farmed the community. It is rich in farm products. Yet there is no place for them to go to market except to Beaumont and accept a Beaumont price. That is the reason LaBelle has no road and never will have until the county commissioners turn over a new leaf and get in the band wagon of county progress.

Promises have been made. They have not been kept. Pledges have been made. They likewise have not been kept. The time is here, now, in this month of August, 1934, when something must be done to rectify action.

There is nothing selfish in Port Arthur's demand that it have trade relations with its own territory.

Beaumont is the center of a network of roads from every section of the county. Concrete and hard-surfaced roads from everywhere ramify to and from Beaumont. County money is being spent to build up Beaumont as a trading territory. It has been insinuated that trades have been quietly made with state highway officials to freeze Port Arthur out of aid necessary to projects in this section. They may not be true, but the fact remains that Port Arthur so far has been unable to get any of that particular Beaumont brand of co-operation, either from leading citizens or from the commissioners of other precincts.

If you were to go to LaBelle today from Port Arthur you would have to travel the equivalent distance of from Port Arthur to Beaumont EXTRA to get there. And LaBelle is only 11 miles from Port Arthur. Can you, a citizen of this county no matter where you reside, imagine a situation like that that has been unchanged for 35 years in the history of Port Arthur, and 75 years in the history of LaBelle?

IMMIGRATION TO U. S.

Migration from the Canadian maritime provinces to the United States, stimulated by bad industrial conditions, began to alarm the business and political interests of the three eastern provinces—Nova Scotia, New Brunswick and Prince Edward Island—early in 1923.

Through the port of Yarmouth, N. S., Canadian terminal for a steamship service, with the United States terminal at Boston, the exodus has numbered from 4,000 to 5,000 per month. By steamer from St. John a similar number went to Boston. By rail approximately 10,000 per month left the maritime provinces.

The majority of these emigrants settled in New England, although many thousands made their homes in and about New York City, and many thousands also went to Detroit and other cities in the central United States. Some thousands more proceeded further west to California, Oregon and Washington. It is estimated that the year 1923 saw about 200,000 people leave the maritime provinces to settle in the United States.

Most of these were young men and women, with an extraordinary large proportion of married men transferring their homes from Canada to the United States.

A serious consequence of the depression has been that talk of secession from the Dominion on the part of the three maritime provinces has become rife.—P. C. Armstrong, in Current History Magazine.

Detailers are in business to serve you. In return for such service they are entitled to fair salaries, a return on the money invested and something in the way of profit which is a return for the risk involved in the business.

Competition in the retail field is healthy inasmuch as it forces the owners to greater efficiencies in operation. The sort of competition which is unhealthful is harmful. Often a person without knowledge of retailing opens up a business and struggles along for a while, but is unable to manage the store properly and fails.

The experimenter has lost his own money, but worse than that, he has taken trade away from an established store thereby reducing the profit to which it is justly entitled. (Copyright, 1934, Associated Editors, Inc.)

Begin Here Today

Peter Newhall, Augusta, Ga., born to Alaska, after a life of Ivan Ichnin, Russian violinist, he had drowned Paul Marchet, Ichnin's secretary, Ichnin and Peter's wife Dorothy, had urged him to go to South America. He joins Big-Chris Larson in response to a distress signal at sea, giving Larson his sea jacket. Their launch hits rocks. Larson's boy is buried as Newhall's Peter, rescued, finds Ichnin's wife completely changed his appearance.

Dorothy and Ichnin go to Alaska to return Peter's body. They do not recognize Peter in their hand guide. A storm strands them at the grave. "Change name," a message from a seance. Dorothy believes to be from Ichnin's spirit to rescue her husband's marriage proposal. They are married by a native priest. Sarichet boldly renounces the marriage. Peter announces his identity.

Now Go On With The Story

There was no time to dwell upon the wonder of it. She saw a swift shadow at the edge of the fire's glow—something that moved like a stalking wolf toward Peter—and she cried sharply in warning. At the same instant she saw from her own place in an instinctive effort to protect her husband from that stealthy, murderous assault.

Her cry reached Peter not an instant too soon. Because his nerves were sound, and the ravages of his youthful dissolutions wholly repaired, he was able to act upon that warning in the twinkling of an eye. There was no time for thought—no if by instinct he leaped aside, his quick eye caught sight of the figure that was even now poised to strike, and his powerful muscles made swift and tremendous response. Pavlov, faithful to the last to his demigod, had drawn a knife that flashed in a shining arc and started to move the situation in his own way; but Peter's rifle swung in his arms and the bare barrel struck the leaping figure with shattering force. He crumpled in the moss for the time being impotent and unconscious.

It seemed to Peter that the Russian's hand moved toward his hip; and he wisely decided to take the offensive. The rifle leaped to his shoulder, and the long, strong finger curled about the trigger, ready to exert the little, deathly ounce of pressure at the needed instant. Whatever murderous instincts had been awakened in Ivan were speedily repressed. Once before he had seen that rifle at that same shoulder—the day his life had been menaced by the charging abbe—he had been reminded of the purpose of aim, the lightning swiftness of fire. That deadly combination could not fall at this close range.

"I don't trust this bunch," Peter said roughly. "Put up your hands, Ivan. I'm not going to take a chance."

Ivan obeyed promptly; Peter was a deadly mood. The Mongol was a brave man and a sportsman, yet he did not even wince at the grin of bravado. "You seem to hold the cards," he said simply.

"I'm going to continue to hold them too," Peter gave a quick glance in search of Sarichet, finding him, appalled and terrified, in the shadows beside the dugout. The latter had left his rifle and supplies in the dugout; and no shadow of courage he remained in which to select and use it in his master's behalf. He threw up his hands at Peter's command.

Next Peter located Fortune Joe, also obscured in the shadows, and called him to his side. "Search all these fellows for weapons," he ordered solemnly, and pile 'em up in front of me. Go on, Clum, the name Joe obeyed promptly, and Fortune Joe's command carried down the ranks of supplies that had been prepared for tomorrow's journey and loaded them in the dugout. The weapons were similarly disposed of. Then, shielding Dorothy behind him, he backed down to the water's edge.

He helped the girl into the bow seat; then while he stood guard he shoved off. As the boat was lifted on the first little wave he himself sprang in. Joe grasped his oars.

"Can we make it out?" Peter asked quietly of his oarsman. There was a tremor in his voice now; but it was nothing to cease Joe his confidence in him, or Dorothy her faith. The native knew him as a strong leader, a worthy representative of a great race. To Dorothy came the certain knowledge that as long as her hand lay in his, no rough wave need nag her, no menacing darkness fill her with fear. With such companionship as they had, an excited effort where between well-mated men and women of their race, what battenboard could conquer them? What lesser breeds despoil them of their dominance?

Joe dipped his oars. "It's a strong wind, but fair," he said laconically. It was a strong wind, but fair, that blew them down the Peninsula. Many the time they were menaced by reefs and up-jutting sea crags; often they were harassed by towering waves and obliged to seek shelter in the deep-cut bays, and more than once it seemed beyond belief that they would not be instantly overwhelmed. But always Fortune Joe's good seamanship, assisted by Peter's good nerve and strong muscles, brought them safely through.

It was a long, difficult, dangerous journey; but these were voyages not to be despised. Dorothy, the daughter of a strong breed, had always had a potential strength with which to meet such trials as this. They will go through in cars.

West Side's Support Falters Behind Stoner

CENTRAL CREW WINS GAME 9-3

Laure Hitting Hero With His Home Run

STONER justified his title of premier hard-luck pitcher of the Texaco league yesterday afternoon when the league-leading Central Area crew smashed the West Side, 9 to 3, in seven slow innings. Stoner negotiated 12 strikeouts, and as did Laure of Central, but the West Side hurler was given poor support in the eight places. The box score gives West Side only four errors, but the scorekeeper was generous and let the Central hit column swell for a total of ten.

His hits were formally allowed Central in the second inning, when the entire team batted around, not an error being charged to West Side. Thus Central is credited with six earned runs, the other three runs coming on errors.

Kaine Hits Triple
West Side's only rally came in the fourth inning when Johnny Noble's nine ran up the score to 6-3. Palmer's pretty Texas leaguer, Kaine's three-bagger to left-center field and an error by Carter on Fred's grounder were responsible for the only three runs made by West Side. In every other inning, with the exception of the sixth, the West Siders went out one-two-three.

Dee Carter at second was given a pair of errors, but Carter was not to blame. He was bothered with a bad eye that made the morning ball look like a white blur coming his way. Palmer at shortstop for the West Side insured one groundout, but otherwise played a creditable game, accepting two other chances, making a hit once, scoring once and stealing a base.

Cole, in West Side's center field made a pair of beautiful errors in the fifth round causing error Central runs. Cole dropped two flies—one by Perkins, the other by Jimmy Bell. Cole admitted it was his first game in the outfield in five years.

Thunder Comes in Second
The traffic second inning when Central made six hits and five runs was started when Perkins made a safety through shortstop and advanced to second on Hane's sacrifice. Bell hit safely through shortstop and advanced to second on Hane's sacrifice. Bell hit safely through second base, Perkins scoring, and Hane reached first on an infield grounder through the pitcher's box. Laure doubled into right field, scoring two runs. Gabel struck out, and Romero doubled into center field. Carter hit into right field and stole second. Romero having scored in the meantime. Corley struck out, ending the misery.

Hitting honors of the day went to Laure, Central hurler, who doubled once and raced around for a home run in the sixth inning with none on bases. The decision was close at the plate on the throw-in, but Laure was safe. Hane made a pair of scratchy hits and one sacrifice in four times up, while Kaine, West Side's third sacker, hammered out a triple and a single in three times up.

Williams' Fielding Good
The strikout record on the batteries was as follows: Central Area, Romero 2, Carter 1, Corley 2, Perkins 2, Piekard 1, Gabel 1, Hane 1, West Side, Palmer 1, Draughton 1, Williams 2, Fred 2, Cole 1, Williams 2, King 2.

The diminutive Williams in right field for West Side played a nice game and did good fielding on the other batters coming his way.

ADVENTURES OF THE TWINS

By OLIVIA ROBERTS BARTON

NO. 34—THE LAST OF THE PARK

Mister Zip painted a new sign.

Mister Zip painted a new sign. "Lucky Park One Free! One Free!" And everybody from the meadow said, "Happy Go Lucky Park. Every one free! Come on, come on and have a good time." And from that minute on, he started to make his fortune, for everybody came and everybody spent money to have a good time. The Twins were as busy as ants in a sugar barrel. They helped with everything—the merry-go-round, the lemonade, peanut, popcorn stand, and the roller coaster. The Fairy Queen smiled when she got a letter from Mister Zip one day which read this way: "Dear Queen: I am sure you will be much obliged to know that the Twins have been a wonderful help to me. They have worked like everything and I am sure that I never could have made my fortune if they had not been here to help. As it is, my fortune is now all except about $2.00. When that is made I shall close up Happy Go Lucky Park, for this season at least, and go on my vacation. I shall leave the magic shoes you sent for the Twins beside the big stone under the chestnut tree. If it isn't too much trouble will you please send Silver Wing or Nibble Toes to come and get them?" "The Twins said to tell you that if you have anything else for them to do, please send Jack the magic shoes and a letter. They'll be glad to do anything you say." "Your humble servant, Mister Zip." So now you know just how much help the Twins were. It was the last day of Happy Go Lucky Park and Mister Zip had made his fortune all but 19 cents, when something happened. Everybody from the green woods was there. And everybody from the meadow said, "Happy Go Lucky Park. Every one free! Come on, come on and have a good time." And even some of the water people, like Granddaddy Frog and old Mosey Mud Turtle and young Mosey Mud Turtle, were there. So I know it's true, so as many people say it. Somebody left the bars of the fence down and who should get out of the sweet clover field but old Gray Tail, the horse. Old Gray Tail didn't know there was such a place as Happy Go Lucky Park in the world. Or if he did, it just went in one ear and out the other. He had heard the Yellowbill Duck talk to Mister Cock-a-doodle about having a good time somewhere or other, but he hadn't paid much attention. And all at once didn't he almost stepped on it—Happy Go Lucky Park. "Hello, here!" said old Gray Tail. "What's all this about? And what are those cool bells a swell?" With that he dipped down his big nose and ate up everything on the popcorn, peanut, ice cream cone stand. "Oh, oh, oh!" shrieked "he visitors. "Go away, Gray Tail! You aren't allowed to have things without money." "Excuse me," said Gray Tail. "I didn't know that. I thought you got them for nothing. I haven't any money. Put I can't give them back. I'll go away now, though, and not bother you any more." That was the end of Happy Go Lucky Park. Gray Tail wasn't any use of staying any longer. Nancy and Nick helped Mister Zip put up the sign. "Closed till next year." I don't know where Mister Zip spent his vacation. (To Be Continued)

CHILD'S STORY OF THE HUMAN RACE

By Uncle RAY

COLLEGE DISPUTE AND FIGHTS

It was common for students of the Middle Ages to wear daggers, or swords at their sides. Some of them were wild fellows. They did not care much about learning. They spent most of their time gambling, drinking and having a general "good time." What do you suppose the dangers and awards were for? Chiefly for fights with the townsmen. At Oxford, Cambridge, Paris, Cologne and other university places, many persons lived besides the students. They were often in quarrels with the boisterous fellows who went to the universities. Sometimes, the students quarreled amongst themselves. At Oxford, there was a hot feud between Irish and Scotch students. In an effort to put an end to the fighting, Oxford decided to impose fines. Any student who struck with his fist was to be fined four shillings. For striking with stone or cup, the fine was six shillings and eight pence. The fine was ten shillings for striking with a dagger, sword or ax. The head man of Oxford was called the chancellor. He acted as the judge when students or teachers got into trouble. One time there was a dispute between Sir Thomas Lancaster, who had many students in his charge, and John Meriton, a teacher. The wife of Meriton was also in the dispute, on the side of her husband, Lancaster was backed by a certain Simon Marshall. Instead of going to law, the two tried to have the quarrel settled peacefully. One of the chief men of the university heard their case and decided: "You shall agree not to go to law about this case. Neither shall you strike one another, or use words of abuse, or make faces, or look fierce." "Instead of doing any such thing, you shall have a party together. One side must supply a goose and some wine. The other must bring bread and beer." When students lived together in halls or "dormitories," there was likely to be a good deal of unliking. Sometimes, a disorderly student was put on bread and water. In other cases, he was punished by having the Bible read aloud to him while he ate! (Copyright, 1924, John F. Dille Co., Chicago.)

Color Cut-Outs

A Secret Trip

"To hoo, Billy Cut-out!" shouted Roger, early in the morning. Billy stuck his head out and then stood his friend carrying a big fishing pole over his shoulder and holding a landing net and a can of worms. "Whee!" exclaimed Billy. "I'll be down in a minute." "We're going down to the creek," called Roger, "and fish and try to think up some plan for getting that poor girl out of that old cottage. We're the only friends she has." But Billy had pulled his head in. A few moments later he came down the steps two at a time and away they went to the creek.

Color the fish a gray green, the net handle tan and the fishing pole yellow. Mount them on cardboard and cut them out. You can put a string through the end of the fishing rod and through the hole right back of the fish's mouth. (Copyright, 1924, Associated Editors, Inc.)

CANADA DEVELOPING NEW CATTLE BREED

WAINWRIGHT, Alta., Aug. 6.—A new breed of livestock, which may have a bearing on the future meat supply, has been developed in the national park here by crossing buffalo with yaks. Superintendent A. G. Smith says the stock has heavy beef qualities combined with a food swelling nature. The breed has been given the name "yakalos," which Mr. Smith believes will prove more practical than "yakalo," evolved several years ago by crossing yakalos with domestic cattle. The "yakalos" breed true to type, are sturdy and able to forage for themselves, he said.

The River Nile is 4400 miles long, which isn't half as long as the great Salt river up which politicians go.

PALMER QUILTS POST-DISPATCH

Veteran of Organization Is Praised in Editorial

HOUSTON, Aug. 6.—J. J. Palmer, for 30 years director and trustee of the Houston Post, has announced his retirement from the Houston Printing Company, publishers of the Post-Dispatch.

The Post-Dispatch carries the following editorial this morning:

"It is with regret that the Post-Dispatch announces this morning the retirement from connection with the paper of Mr. J. J. Palmer, who yesterday resigned as vice president and director of the Houston Printing Company, publishers of the Post-Dispatch.

"Mr. Palmer is one of the veterans of the Post organization. For more than 30 years he was a member of the official family and played a vital part in developing it into a great daily paper. In truth, he was one of the principal makers of the Post.

"For a quarter of a century, he served with Colonel H. M. Johnston and L. E. MacGregor as trustee of the J. J. Watson estate during the minority of Roy G. Watson, recent principal owner of the Post and during that time he was in active charge of the business of the paper.

"Specially Executive

"It is that capacity, he demonstrated his splendid ability, winning for himself a wide recognition as a newspaper executive and as a business man. The solid position the Houston Post came to occupy under his management was a sufficient proof of his energy, enterprise and business sagacity.

"Mr. Palmer's retirement brings keen personal regret to members of the Post organization with whom he has been associated for so long. As an executive he had a reputation for being always fair, frank and considerate and he possessed the confidence and respect of all with whom he labored."
